GC chooses 2 valedictorians

By Michael Heil
Staff writer

Cory Simpson and Leah Gambin are Granite City High School's valedictorians for the 1998-99 school year.

The 17-year-olds said they were honored to be chosen and, like other members of the Class of 1999, are ready to face the challenges that lie ahead. "High school is a fleeting moment," Cory said. "There are many obstacles that now await us that can only be tack-

Leah said, "We are ready to

Tax increase challenged

Venice fights reassessment

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Amid complaints that it wasn't doing anything to fight the recent dramatic reassessment of the AmerenUE power plant, the Venice City Council approved challenging the constitutionality of the state law allowing that reassessment.

The city will also present recently released tax figures to legislators in an attempt to have the law amended.

About 45 people attended the meeting, held in the Venice Senior Citizens Center to accommodate the crowd. During heated discussions, several audience members accused the city - specifically Mayor Tyrone Echols and City Attorney Casper Nighohossian - of doing nothing to deal with the problem.

The assessed valuation of AmerenUE's Venice generating plant was recently reassessed to $1 million from $6 million. That reassessment, along with a negative multiplier, is the major reason Venice residents will see about a 14 percent increase in their tax bill this year.

The owner of a $30,000 home would pay $1,092.53 in property taxes. Last year that same home would have cost $569.15.

At the beginning of the meeting, Echols said that after some discussion, including a meeting with local com-

Legislation backs trails

Voters get chance to decide fate of funding for park district

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Legislation that would allow voters in the Metro-East area to approve a sales tax hike to fund parks and trails was approved by the Illinois Legislature last week.

The bill would allow the creation of the Metro-East Park and Recreation District, which would be responsible for planning and development of an extensive network of linear parks and trails in the area.

The legislation authorizes a referendum that requires voter approval of a 1/10-cent sales tax to fund the district.

Funds would be used to develop and maintain a network of interconnected parks in the Metro-East and improve existing local park and recreation facilities.

Similar legislation has been approved by the Missouri General Assembly. If approved by voters, a separate district would be created in Missouri.

A district spanning both states could be created, but would require an act of Congress.

"I think what the legislators are doing is going to get a lot of support from the public."

Ted Curtis
Executive director, Trailnet Inc.

"It's fabulous. This is one of the first times I've seen the region pull together and address something," he said.

Yard waste dumping discussed

Council debates problem of non-resident and commercial dumping

By Michael Heil
Staff writer

The Granite City Council Tuesday discussed what measures could be taken against non-residents who dump yard waste at the dumping site on 25th Street.

"I feel we are being taken advantage of. I think it's a mistake for us to open it to anyone and his brother that's not a resident of (Granite City) for use," said 2nd Ward

Alderman Craig Tarporff.

There is no stipulation in an ordinance pertaining to yard waste that states non-residents cannot dump such waste at the site. Tarporff said he would like to amend sections of the ordi-

BPW scholarships awarded

Stern and Wright both presented with award

By Michael Heil

Danielle Stern and Jenna Wright received the 1999 Granite City Business and Professional Women's $1,000 scholarships.

Stern, 20, is a junior at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, and Wright, 19, is a freshman at Quincy College.

They were awarded the scholarships by BPW President Linda Wense Wednesday evening during the monthly dinner meeting at Jerry's Restaurant in Granite City. About 60 BPW members attended.

Stern and Wright thanked the women for their financial support.

OPINION

Y2K problem not as terrible as you might really think

Some people might try to take advantage of situation, however

By Rep. John Shimkus

The year 2000 computer problem, or Y2K as it is widely known, has caused trepidation among some, increased work for computer programmers, opportunity for scam artists and fear of lawsuits for others.

The Y2K problem is just the inability of older computer programs to recognize the year 2000. Some disruptions are possible, but government agencies and businesses are working diligently to find solutions and make corrections.

The House of Representatives has acted by passing a bill limiting lawsuits due to a computer programming problem, not in the direct contrivance of many personal computer users. A 90-day waiting period before lawsuits are filed would allow businesses to correct the problem. A $250,000 limit on punitive damages would prevent frivolous lawsuits. Actual losses and attorney fees would not be capped.

This legislation would allow companies to spend money on fixing the computer problem instead of paying for lawyers to fend off lawsuits. I was proud to co-sponsor this common-sense protection for small businesses, who should not be held responsible for a simple computer glitch.

For those businesses wishing to check their computer systems now, the Small Business Administration has setup a hotline staffed with experts, who can assist small businesses with their Y2K questions. The number to call is (800) Y2K-7557 (925-7557).

Many criminals are also trying to cash in on people's fears and lack of computer expertise. One such scam relates to banking. This scam involves the transfer of funds to another account until the bank can comply with Y2K problems. This is not necessary.

If you received such a call, notify your bank immediately. Never give account information over the telephone.

No one really knows how big a problem this computer error will be. Businesses and government are spending billions of dollars to check their computers and repair Y2K defects. All of these efforts should prevent major catastrophes.

Illinois 20th District Rep. John Shimkus (R-Collinsville) can be reached at his district offices in Springfield at (217) 492-5090 and Collinsville at 344-3065. In addition, you can check out Shimkus' Internet site at www.house.gov/shimkus.

Letter to the Editor

Gore's new nickname:
Simple: Mr. Zero

TO THE EDITOR:

When Vice President Al Gore was in St. Louis recently for an evening of campaigning and received the endorsement of Congressman Richard Gephardt, D-Missouri, for president in 2000, Mr. Gore made a most alarming statement.

It led me to name him "Mr. Zero."

What did he say? He stated over television that in this century we could achieve "zero" unemployment and "zero" poverty.

After the federal government's spending of trillions of dollars in the past 35 years, and not having achieved that goal, one must logically assume it will never occur.

For any person, candidate or public office-holder to make that statement publicly — and believe it — I might suggest that person has a fascist mentality or outlook. It is an insane statement.

I am sorry, but I have reached a stage in my life where I can no longer tolerate the intolerable.

MEL JONES
Collinsville

Truth is relative concept, even in Springfield

Power, cable television lobbying experiences prove that point well

One of the most difficult things about dealing with the going-on at the Illinois General Assembly is figuring out who is telling a more reliable version of the truth.

Here's one for you: Commonwealth Edison, perhaps the most hated corporation in all of Illinois, came up with an idea not long ago to save its stockholders some money.

The state's 1997 electric utility deregulation law caps the company's earnings, with consumers getting a piece of any profits over that limit. The earnings cap is based on the yield of 30-year treasury bonds, which have tanked since the law was enacted.

So ComEd asked the people who run the General Assembly to increase their cap. The estimates of how much money this could put in the company's pockets range as high as $600 million over five years.

In exchange, the company offered to move up a scheduled 5 percent rate increase by six months, saving residential consumers $50 million to $70 million. The company also agreed to set up a $250 million environmental and energy conservation trust fund and spend $2 billion on improving its suburban infrastructure over five years.

Is this a good thing? The other electric utilities complained loudly that ComEd was enriching itself at the consumers' expense, and of course, they demanded the same earnings cap arrangement, but they didn't offer to put any money on the table like ComEd had.

They also claimed, although this is debatable, that the state's deregulation law already requires the company to fix its aging infrastructure, so according to them, ComEd's $2 billion pledge was no big whoop.

On the plus side, the Citizens Utility Board endorsed the ComEd bill. CUB's leaders claim that the utility would have been able to skirt easily the Byzantine profit-sharing requirements in the state's dereg law anyway, so at least consumers would be guaranteed to receive some money under this deal.

But it turns out that the ComEd proposal also would give CUB a million dollars a year in state money. CUB is in dire fiscal straits these days, and some people (including the utilities, which hate CUB with a passion) accused the consumer group of selling its soul.

It's best to have an "honest broker" in these sorts of situations — with "honest" being a relative term, of course. The consumer group Citizens Action had sharply criticized CUB for supporting the original dereg law, but the organization supports this arrangement with ComEd.

Citizens Action can be a somewhat radical bunch when it comes to utility issues, so if it's supporting an alleged "giveaway" to Commonwealth Edison, it's probably not a bad deal.

Here's another one: The cable television industry zipped a bill out of the Illinois Senate recently that required local governments to hold a referendum before they formed their own cable companies. The cable guys said this would protect their multi-million dollar investments from the whims of local officials.

Rep. Bill Black, R-Danville, introduced the original law to allow towns to start their own cable companies. The idea, he said, was to give smaller, more remote towns some leverage when their local cable monopolies refused to provide decent service.

Black claimed the new cable bill was "anti-consumer." Nonsense, said the bill's legislative supporters. The bill would force local governments to negotiate stronger service agreements with the cable companies in the first place. The locals also could threaten to bring in a private competitor, and they still could use the threat of a referendum against the companies.

Yeah, right, said Black. Cable companies aren't exactly falling all over themselves to serve rural communities, so it's not easy to drive a hard bargain, and you can forget about finding another company willing to compete for a piece of some little town's pie. Also, governments can't spend tax money to support referendums, but the cable companies can run free ads on their TV channels to defeat any ballot questions.

The day after the cable bill passed the House over Black's objections, the cable television industry took the unprecedented step of volunteering to run advertisements for free that promoted Gov. George Ryan's proposed $12 billion infrastructure plan.

There's nothing quite like generating a bit of goodwill just before the chief executive gets your bill.

East St. Louis council opposes GIR parking lot

Wickham: We are still studying our options

By Jason White
Staff writer

METRO EAST
The East St. Louis City Council on Thursday

passed a resolution opposing a Gateway International Raceway request to build a parking lot on wetlands. The Madison-based racetrack has applied for a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to build a 150-acre parking lot on land bordering the Landsdowne Ditch and Cahokia Creek Canal. The parking lot would drain 40 acres of wetlands. The racetrack did not withdraw its permit application, despite a recent appellate court ruling that invalidated the Southwestern Illinois Development Authority's eminent domain acquisition of the land last year for the racetrack.

"We are studying our options in light of the court decision," Gateway public relations director Pete Wickham said. He referred questions to SWIDA officials who could not be reached Monday.

East St. Louis Community Action Network Executive Director James Jones and Conservation Alliance President Kathy Andria have asked the Corps to deny the permit because wetlands prevent flooding.

Andria said the Corps and local elected officials have pledged to preserve wetlands.

"They've got to hold the line," Andria said. "There's just too many exceptions that have been made granting wetlands permits in the (American) Bottoms."

Andria said racetrack patrons could use public transportation such as Metrolink. The racetrack also could build a parking lot in less sensitive areas of East St. Louis or Madison, she said.

Andria said she appreciated the resolution against the parking lot.

Mosquitoes like these are starting to come out once again throughout Madison County, including the Tri-Cities area. The pesky insects can do more than create an itching nuisance — they can also spread serious diseases such as encephalitis and malaria.

Fighting mosquitoes should be everyone's summer priority

Pesky insects can often spread serious diseases

By Bethany Behrhorst
Staff writer

Every child's wading pool, each tiny puddle, even gutters clogged by leaves could be potential breeding grounds for mosquitoes, warns the Madison County Health Department.

The county and cities constantly battle mosquitoes. Their eradication efforts keep the population manageable, but the Health Department calls for action on the part of residents.

"We're not seeing a significant increase this year," said Toni Corona, environmental health services manager for the Madison County Health Department.

County Health Department. "At this point, there's nothing to suggest it's going to be anything more or less than it was last year."

"But it can't just be the county or the city's responsibility. It needs to be everyone's."

Residents are urged to take personal inventories of possible breeding places for mosquitoes. They should empty cluttered gutters around the house, as well as wading pools, wheelbarrows, old tire rims, cans, buckets and other pools of stagnant water.

"Those are great places for mosquitoes to breed," Corona said. "Eliminating their breeding places can prevent mosquitoes from reaching maturity and possibly spreading diseases such as encephalitis — characterized by an inflammation of the brain, headaches, fever and aches and pains — and malaria, which causes a high fever and chills.

Mosquitoes go through three stages before reaching adulthood: first as the egg, then developing into a larva and then to a pupa. These stages require water, and even a tiny puddle will suffice. If a plentiful source of water is available and warm temperatures prevail, the cycle to maturity takes little time to complete.

That whole cycle can be completed in as little as 10 days," Corona said. "Precautions need to be taken when going outside. One is replacing perfume with insect repellent. Using electric bug zappers and citronella candles also help cut down on the mosquito population in back yards and other areas outdoors."

Lemon balm and pennyroyal are herbal repellents that are less toxic than traditional bug sprays found in stores. Although no cases of encephalitis or malaria were reported in Madison County in 1998 or so far this year, Corona and health professionals said people still need to be on guard.

"Both of those diseases have decreased compared to years before," said Virginia Ilich, hospital infection control coordinator and registered nurse staff at Alton Memorial Hospital. "There also can be extremely mild cases. Sometimes, if we do happen to have large numbers of cases of encephalitis, then we'll really be concerned. The more numbers you have, the more likely you are to have more serious diseases."

New GED test in offering by 2001

By Paul Mackie
Staff writer

A new edition of GED tests will be implemented sometime in 2001, forcing some to start the test-taking process anew. The General Equivalency Development test can be taken three times per year by individual examinees attempting to receive a high-school equivalency certificate.

Examinees have three chances each year to try to pass the test. However, those in the middle of a year cycle when the format changes in 2001 will be required to start over. "In 2001, they won't be able to use accumulated scores because there may be another test added," said Regional Superintendent of Schools Harry Briggs, whose office administers testing in Madison County.

Another section would be added to the multiple-choice test, which presently includes sections of math, social studies, science, literature and writing. Briggs doesn't know what the subject of the new section will be.

Venice discusses AmerenUE reassessment

At the beginning of the meeting, Echols said that after some discussion, including a meeting with local community activists last week, that the best way is to challenge the law itself, rather than the company.

"It appears that the best way to challenge it is not to file a lawsuit against UE, it is to file a lawsuit against the constitutionality of the law," Echols said.

He said the city wants to avoid a legal battle with the company, in part because of the fear of counterattacks.

While several people criticized city officials for doing nothing about the situation, both Echols and Nighoghossian said there is nothing more they can do.

The reassessment is based on state statutes that say power plants are only assessed for the undepreciated value of the property, instead of the real value as is all other property, and are the only ones receiving such a break.

"That's the state of the law in Illinois," Nighoghossian said. "They are treated differently."

He said Venice is probably the absolute worst-case scenario of what that law can do to a community.

"It's not something that anybody planned," he said. "Everything bad just came together here."

However, Nighoghossian said that at some point in time the assessed value of the plant will be close to zero, and the utility can only sell it for that amount.

He also said the city can use eminent domain to purchase the plant for that amount and run it.

Nighoghossian said the city was originally notified that AmerenUE was seeking a reassessment last spring.

Normally, the Madison County Board of Review would send notice for a hearing, but because the company cited several Illinois Supreme Court cases and state law, the board granted reassessment without a hearing, rather than complicate the issue further.

The city filed an appeal, which was heard and denied Jan. 6. In the meantime, Nighoghossian said the city requested a meeting with company officials to see if some kind of deal could be negotiated to lessen the impact.

That meeting was held in December, and although all taxing bodies affected by the reassessment were notified, the only representatives at the meeting were Echols, Nighoghossian and a late-arriving representative from the Venice School District.

Nighoghossian said AmerenUE officials basically told them to "go fly a kite," and that they would not negotiate.

He also said there was no point in appealing the case to either the Madison County or state board of review.

"My legal opinion, then and now, was that we were dead in the water," Nighoghossian said.

"I had read the law. There was nothing we could do," he added. "There was nothing to base an appeal on."

He also said that if the city would lose the case, the most likely outcome, then it would be responsible for paying interest on the amount of tax revenue in question to AmerenUE.

And while the city will challenge the constitutionality of the law, he said the best solution is in the legislature.

Echols said they have waited to do that until the city had the final information on the 1998 tax rates.

Now that they have that information, Echols said the council would ask area legislators to come to a meeting and discuss the issue.

New legislation backs local bike trails

"I think what the legislators are doing is going to get a lot of support from the public."

He said polls show people "love parks and green space, and are concerned about too much being paved over."

To be part of the district, each county would have to approve the referendum.

Curtis said he expects the actual vote to take place during the presidential elections in November 2000.

Several public and private agencies are now working on a number of trail projects that would combine to form the Confluence Greenway, a system extending from Alton to St. Louis.

That trail system also extends up the Great River Road to Pere Marquette State Park, and would go through the Columbia Bottoms to connect to the Katy Trail in Missouri.

In Madison County, Trailnet Inc. is preparing to reopen the old Chain of Rocks Bridge connecting Chouteau Island and Missouri.

The Madison County Transit District operates the Vandalabene Trail from Edwardsville to Pontoon Beach, and is preparing two other major trails — the Confluence Bikeway from Alton to Granite City (which would extend to the Eads Bridge when Illinois 3 is relocated), and the Schoolhouse Trail, a two-part trail that would extend from the city of Madison to Troy, and from the Madison County Courthouse to Fosg Road.

In St. Clair County, Trailnet is working on MetroLink, a trail that would parallel the new MetroLink extension to Belleville Area College.

In addition to aiding new projects, money from the district could be used to maintain existing facilities.

"The biggest problem we've seen is that a park district gets a grant to build something, but can't take care of it," Curtis said.

The Parks and Open Space Task Force of St. Louis 2004 helped develop the legislation.

"This is a major first step," said Bob Hall, executive director of Gateway Parks and Trails 2004. "It shows that when we work together, we can accomplish much. We are enthusiastic and confident that we will finish the task."

Yard waste dumping target of council

nance so that it would state non-residents cannot dump such waste and would define what type of yard waste can be dumped.

Such an ordinance, Mayor Ron Selph said, would be extremely difficult to enforce. First Ward Alderman Bob Page agreed: "It's going to be tough."

As part of the discussion, commercial use was also mentioned. Tarpoiff said the site was not intended for such use, but "to assist citizens in handling their leaves."

Views differed on if lawn services should be charged a dumping fee and how much they should be able to dump because they are licensed by the city, from which they manure lawns and those of businesses.

"Are we talking three, six or nine bags (of yard waste)? Do we say are you licensed to be doing that or are you from out of town? Are we going to count bags now or the weight of the truck?" Page said.

The subject will be discussed at the next council meeting.

In other business, the council passed a resolution that allows Selph to apply for Community Development Block Grant Funds from Madison County for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 2000.

The funds would aid demolition projects, a summer youth program (high school and college students collecting trash), North Granite drainage problems (new sewer extensions), code enforcement (citations given for derelict buildings and other city violations), rehab projects (low-income home loan expenditures), infrastructure improvements (sidewalk and curb repairs) and an aerial truck for the fire department. The total cost would be $749,600.

The next council meeting will be Tuesday.

Granite City BPW awards two scholarships

Wright, of Granite City, just completed her freshman year. She earned a 3.8 grade point average while taking general education and business courses. She has not declared her major.

This summer, she plans to earn money to further her education by working for Medical Data Systems and possibly as a lifeguard for the Granite City Park District.

Stern, of Mitchell, has declared her major in speech communication. She has a 4.0 grade point average and aspires to become a professor of sociology. She has paid her college tuition with the support of her family and by working at Bed, Bath and Beyond in Fairview Heights.

BPW has helped college students like Wright and Stern since the 1980s through its scholarship program. For women to qualify, they must live in Granite City, Pontoon Beach, Venice, Madison or Mitchell.

The Granite City BPW was founded in 1920.

during commencement exercises. The ceremony starts at 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

As their graduation draws near, Cory and Leah said they are anxious to receive their diplomas, but also are reflecting on the past four years, which have been both challenging and enjoyable.

"I had so much fun participating in sports and meeting new people," Leah said. "I'll miss the competition and all the friends I've made. It's time to move on, but that's not easy."

"It's hard to say goodbye after having so many wonderful experiences in high school," Cory said. "I'll always remember those experiences and draw strength from them and the teachers who inspired me."

They agreed that the biggest challenge was to balance academics with friends and family.

Leah would like to become an obstetrician, and Cory wants to be a pathologist.

Leah, the daughter of Mary Ann and John Gambin, will attend Missouri Baptist College in St. Louis in the fall. Cory, who is the son of Ron and Vicki Simpson, will attend Washington University.

What You Need to Know About Bifocal Contact Lenses
Presbyopia no longer sentences you to life with glasses

by Mark A. Yates, OD
Illinois Eye Specialists

Presbyopia usually begins to affect people in their early 40's. It is a natural change in the eye that limits a person's ability to focus when reading or doing work that requires near vision. The bad news is presbyopia affects all of us. The good news is that there are many bifocal contact lenses now available that can give you freedom from eyeglasses or reading glasses.

Some patients find that a bifocal contact lens works best for them. Many of the new bifocal lenses actually mirror a bifocal lens in eyeglasses. Part of the lens corrects for distance vision, while a separate part of the lens allows for near seeing. Bifocal lenses come in soft, hard and continuous wear designs.

Monovision is a system where a patient wears a contact lens for distance vision in one eye and a lens for near vision in the other. This is also a very effective option for patients who need no distance correction, but are now having difficulty reading.

Thanks to the variety of lenses available many of our patients have found a way to compensate for presbyopia without wearing eyeglasses or reading glasses. If you would like to schedule an examination or would like more information on bifocal contact lenses please call one of our offices listed below.

Frances Henry

FRANCES C. (BARYLSKI) HENRY, 74, of Granite City, formerly of Madison, died at 11:44 p.m. Tuesday, May 25, 1999, at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City.

She was born Sept. 17, 1924, in Madison and was a lifetime area resident. Mrs. Henry had retired from NESCO Barrel, where she had worked as an enamel dipper. She had previously worked at Travelodge and was a member of Holy Family Catholic Church.

Survivors include two daughters, Pamela Bagl and Debbie Henry, both of Granite City; a brother, Carl Barylski of California; and one grandchild, Katie Bagl of Granite City.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Stanislaus and Elizabeth (Layman) Barylski; four brothers, Ted, Tony, Stanley and Urban Barylski; and two sisters, Marie Nemeth and Anne Mahlich. Visitation will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Friday, May 28, at Warner Chapel in Pontonville, where a prayer service is scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

A funeral Mass will be held at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 29, at Holy Family Catholic Church, Granite City, with the Rev. Bill Fisher officiating. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery in Edwardsville. Memorials to the church or in the form of Masses have been suggested.

Douglas Nevins

DOUGLAS E. NEVINS, 44, of Phoenix, died at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, May 16, 1999, at his residence.

He was born March 7, 1955, in Indianapolis and had previously lived in Kentucky. Mr. Nevins had worked for more than 20 years in the wholesale jewelry industry. Survivors include his wife, Tracy Lambert-Nevins, formerly of Granite City; his mother, Arlene Nevins of Phoenix; a brother, Dennis Nevins of Las Vegas; and a sister, Nancy Nevins of Phoenix.

Graveside services were held Thursday, May 20, at Dugger Cemetery, Dugger, Ind., with the Rev. John McDonald officiating. Desert Hills Chapel of Scottsdale, Ariz., handled the arrangements.

Helen Turner

HELEN E. (GORSUCH) TURNER, 93, of Granite City, died at 2:53

a.m. Sunday, May 23, 1999, at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City.

She was born Feb. 9, 1906, in Elkhart, Ind., and had been a Granite City resident since 1943. Mrs. Turner was a homemaker and of the Protestant faith.

Survivors include a son, Richard Lee Turner of Camdenton, Mo.; four grandchildren, Debra Smith of Camdenton, Richard Turner and Brandy Schaeffer, both of Glen Carbon, and Donna Turner of Chicago; and eight great-grandsons.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Joseph Turner, whom she married Oct. 26, 1921, and who died in 1978; a son, Robert E. Turner, who also died in 1978; and her parents, Elmer and Nina (Long) Gorsuch.

Graveside services were held Wednesday, May 26, at Sunset Hill Memorial Estates in Edwardsville, with the Rev. Bill Davidson officiating.

Werner Chapel handled the arrangements.

Countdown 2000 program now under way throughout area

Countdown 2000 for Cleaner Air is an outreach effort to register in 1999 2,000 new commuters who are using an alternative mode of transportation to get to and from work rather than driving alone.

Automobiles are a significant contributor to the region's air quality problems, causing more than 25 percent of the emissions that lead to ground level ozone pollution.

The goal is to reduce the number of single-occupant vehicles on the road and to help identify and recognize those who are choosing alternatives.

Countdown 2000 is being spearheaded by the Work Trip Reduction Committee.

Metro Enforcement Group establishes new drug hot line

No arrests have come from phone tips — yet

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

If your neighbors have people dropping in at all times of the night, staying for a short time and moving in, they may have a lot of friends.

Or they may be operating a drug house, and the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois wants to know about it.

A tip hot line has been up and running for about two weeks, and although no arrests have been made yet, Lt. Mark Bramlett said it is going well.

"We're receiving tips on a daily basis and acting on them," he said. "We have opened cases on them, we just haven't made any arrests yet."

He said the hot line has been operational every day except one, when a telephone repairman accidentally

"We're receiving tips on a daily basis and acting on them. We have opened cases on them, we just haven't made any arrests yet."

Lt. Mark Bramlett

disconnected it while repairing other telephone lines.

Bramlett added that they have been wrapping up other cases and building new cases based on the tips.

"It will probably be a week or two before we start making our first arrests off the tip line," he said.

MEGSI's hot line number is 346-3406. It is in operation 24 hours a day, and citizens can remain anonymous.

In a related matter, the Illinois State Police are on the lookout for marijuana farmers. "Most of the plants have already been put in the ground," Bramlett said. "As the season goes on they'll get taller and be easier to identify."

Signs to look for are pickups and ATVs where they do not belong, gardening tools or the plants themselves.

If someone finds marijuana plants, they should not disturb them. Instead, call the ISP District 11 headquarters in Collinsville at 346-3960, or 1-800-247-7884. Information is confidential.

Bramlett said there is some wild hemp in the area, but most marijuana plants will be cultivated.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes a man and woman will obtain a divorce, and the question arises as to whether or not a stepfather can obtain custody of their children. Under Illinois law, a natural parent has a superior right to the custody of his child. However, that right is not absolute and must yield to the best interests of the child.

In one recent case, a Baptist minister married a woman who had a 13-year-old son. After the husband and wife separated, the trial court found that the boy was an abused minor. The court found that the 13-year-old was inappropriately disciplined by his mother. The boy was placed with the Department of Children and Family Services.

The trial court later found that the mother was unable to care for, protect, train, and discipline the boy. The court felt it was in the best interests of the child to be placed in the custody of his stepfather. It should be noted that the whereabouts of his natural father was unknown. The mother appealed the decision, arguing that it was not in the best interest of a 13-year-old boy to be placed in the custody of a man who was unrelated but that he should instead remain with his natural mother.

The Appellate Courts of Illinois have ruled that the parents' right to the custody of their child shall not prevail when the Court determines that it is contrary to the best interests of the child. If the "best interests" standard can be attained only by placing the child in the custody of someone other than the natural parent it is unnecessary for the Court to find the natural parent unfit to care for the child.

In the case noted above, the social worker observed that the 13-year-old boy considered his stepfather as his "father." The boy noted that the stepfather disciplined him, but did so in a fair manner. The boy and his stepfather had a great deal in common, especially a mutual interest in sports. By contrast, the 13-year-old boy said he was afraid of his mother because she was so unpredictable and physically abusive. The boy's wishes, coupled with the abusive disposition of the mother, led the Appellate Court to affirm the decision of the trial court and grant custody of the 13-year-old boy to his stepfather.

Group offers summer art, drama camps

Directors hope to offer direction for kids often lost in shuffle

By Curtiss A. Hartley
Staff writer

Summer camps have come a long way from the swimming hole, bug spray, bad food and campfires made famous by the Allan Sherman song about "Camp Granada."

MADISON COUNTY Area youths can sign up this summer for arts and drama camps offered by Creative Express in Glen Carbon.

Campers will tie-dye shirts, explore painting and sculpture techniques, learn acting skills, write and perform a play and build Indonesian "Shadow Puppets."

"The focus of the camps is to give children something positive to do with their time," said Creative Express director Ike Day.

Day said she is concerned about a local eighth-grade boy suspended from school.

"It worries me. He's now roaming the streets," she said. "Kids need something to do, so they don't get lost in the shuffle. That's what her camps are meant to do."

Classes are purposely kept small, workshop-style, providing for better interaction among the youngsters, Day said.

"The teacher is more a resource person," she said. "We're not so much project oriented as process oriented."

"We generate the ideas together, and then the kids generate the projects from that."

For instance, she said, in the drama writing workshop, the campers themselves will decide whether to write a mystery, a drama or a comedy. The instructor will only help to guide them. Day

Camp instructors are drawn from area colleges and professions. Of the three drama instructors, one has a theater degree from the University of Illinois, and the other two are seniors in theater at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Day and another instructor teach the art workshops.

"These are professional artists as well as educators who want to share their resources with the kids," Day said.

Creative Express is a not-for-profit organization that exists with the donations of sponsors, and area schools and churches that provide the classroom space.

How many dollars a Madison County city or village police department gets to keep from what it collects on a traffic ticket is surprisingly little.

MADISON COUNTY The Village of Roxana for example, only nets $26.70 from a $75 traffic ticket, said Police Chief Richard

"Over time, the amount of the fine has remained the same, but the way it is allocated has meant fewer dollars return to the municipality that wrote the ticket," Farthing said. "People may be surprised that more of the revenue doesn't stay with the village. More and more of it is allocated to statewide programs."

Driver's education, crime victim's compensation, battered women's shelters and courthouse security are just some of the avenues through which traffic fine revenues are channeled. Madison County Traffic Division Supervisor Crystal Hale said the allocation percentages have remained the same for six years but can vary from county to county

"Whether it's a $75 speeding ticket, a $200 fine for driving with a suspended or revoked license or an uninsured motorist fine, the percentages of how the revenues are divided remain the same for Madison County," Hale said. "We've been on the same allocation percentages since 1993."

"I think the most we get on any ticket is 50 percent of the fine," said Caseyville Police Chief Ron Tamburello. "The rest goes to various county projects. It's been that way for a long time."

"The most I've seen I think is $31 off an $85 ticket," he said.

He said the department receives monthly reports of revenue received from various fines and citations, and he always is amazed at how little the returns are for Caseville.

Troy Police Chief William Brown said his department is in a similar position. "I don't have it down to the penny, but basically we will get 50 percent of a $75 or $85 traffic fine," he said. "It's been like that for at least eight or nine years. The rest of it is channeled to Collinsville Police Chief Gerrit Gillespie said he didn't have access to figures for his department.

Before Roxana and other area municipalities see their 44.5 percent of traffic fine dollars, three $5 fees come off for circuit clerk automation, circuit clerk document storage and court security at Madison County Courthouse.

The state treasurer gets 16.825 percent of a traffic ticket, channeling the revenue into funds specifically devoted to victims of motor vehicle traumas and violent crime.

Victims of violent crime receive 11.765 percent of the state's allocation. Illinois' driver's education division uses 17.647 percent towards videos promoting safe driving. The state's trauma center fund, comprised of public aid and public health divisions, gets 40.87 percent.

Warriors edge Triad in regional title tilt

Granite City advances to sectional semifinal, will play Belleville East today in Columbia

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

With Nos. 4 and 5 seeds in the IHSA Columbia Sectional girls soccer tournament on Tuesday night at Triad High, a close game was to be expected.

GIRLS SOCCER
The showdown between Triad and Granite City was closely contested and skillfully played as the Warriors posted a 2-1 victory.

"This was probably the best that we have come to play," Granite City coach Gene Baker said. "I think (Triad) is a very good team and it was a good game; it was very good girls soccer."

The first meeting this season between the two teams featured two of the nation's winningest soccer coaches — Baker and Triad's Mike Villa, who was at the helm of one of the nation's top prep programs while coaching at Vianney High School in Kirkwood, Mo. It also gave the Warriors (13-2) a chance to prove its point for the No. 4 seed, which went to Triad (12-3-3).

But the Knights jumped ahead in the 12th minute. Triad sophomore Kasey Stogsdill stole the ball from the Granite City defense and burst forward through the backfield. Stogsdill unleashed a missile from 20 yards out that beat Warriors keeper Chelsea Peery and found net low to the right.

Just 58 seconds later, the Warriors responded. Granite City midfielder Keri Ousley made a run down the left flank that earned the Warriors a corner kick. Melissa Montgomery's kick into the box found Christina Withers perched on the crease and the sophomore nodded home the equalizer.

The Warriors got the game-winning goal at 22:17. Granite City senior co-captain Crystal Cavins raced forward to join a scramble in the box. When the ball bounded her way, Cavins' aim was true.

"They did the flick and it hit off of Melissa's head, and the goalie was getting ready so I jumped and volleyed it before she got it in her hands," Cavins said. "I just saw the opportunity and went for it."

The Warriors applied steady pressure to Triad keeper Robin Sibley and the Knights backfield throughout the night. Meanwhile, Granite City was able to keep the tandem of Amie Rengel and Kristin Thaxton under cover after the duo sparked the Triad attack early.

"I thought they kept our team in general under wraps," Villa said. "We didn't get that many good chances to score, to their credit. Part of it is that if I had done a little better job of coaching, and the girls did a little better job of playing that game, maybe we would be celebrating a victory. But (Granite) did a great job and I thought they deserved to win."

Baker credited several players for making a difference on defense.

"We got a big lift from (freshman) Kelly Mitchell coming in and doing the job defensively, and from Jessica (Vasiloff)," Baker said. "Then we matched up Melissa

Granite City's Jamie Raub controls the ball in recent action for the Warriors, who improved to 13-4-2 on Tuesday with a 2-1 win against Triad.

Collinsville rallies for another postseason win

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

For the second straight IHSA playoff game, Collinsville High spotted its opponent an early lead only to come roaring back to win the game going away.

GIRLS SOCCER
In the first-round game last Thursday, the Kahoks trailed Breese Mater Dei 2-1 before scoring 14 consecutive goals in a 15-2 victory.

On Tuesday, O'Fallon took a 1-0 lead but the Kahoks answered with four goals to advance to the Class AA Columbia Sectional semifinal round set for today. The Kahoks will face Carbondale, which advanced to 18-4-1

Kahoks score four unanswered goals to beat O'Fallon by beating Edwardsville 2-0. "We had some opportunities real early in the game and I think maybe the girls thought we had an easy game," Collinsville coach Deana Wallace said. "In the playoffs, it is real hard to come back from being a goal down. I guess their goal, you could say, inspired my players. It definitely woke them up."

O'Fallon's lead was short-lived. Christine Hunsinger netted the equalizer with some assistance from teammate Cally Gavlick and Jeana Dietrich.

Gavlick worked the ball free just outside the box and sent a pass over to Dietrich, who fired on net. The ball was headed toward the net and Hunsinger came running in to make sure the ball found the back of the net at 19:59.

Collinsville's Cara LeMaster scored what proved to be the game-winner with 6:59 remaining in the first half. The Panthers did have a strong surge in the last 21 seconds of the first half, but missed an open net. Christen Locandro gave the Kahoks some breathing room with her goal in heavy traffic at 52:18. Collinsville iced the game with 15:48 left. LeMaster ran to a perfect through ball and pulled two defenders toward her. She then slid the ball to Amanda Kirksey, who worked past two defenders before scoring.

The Kahoks' balanced scoring attack left a smile on Wallace's face. "The scoring has been across the board all season," Wallace said. "As a coach, you do like that because it doesn't put the pressure on one individual."

her ability. She likes to take players on but at the same time, if you noticed, she likes drawing players toward her and then laying balls off. That really helps out our offense."

While the offense did its part in collecting four goals, Kahoks keepers Angie Parker, who played the first half, and Stacy Deluca, who played the second half, frustrated the Panthers with some key saves.

"Our keepers played well in the clutch," Wallace said. "Both made key saves. Anytime they make a save, that takes away the momentum or energy away from O'Fallon. A lot of their shots were nice shots on goal. Both of our keepers have very skilled hands and were able to hold very good O'Fallon shots."

Granite City closes SWC play with win

Warriors defeat Alton 3-1, begin playoffs today vs. Cahokia

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

Granite City finished off the regular season with four games in six days.

PREP SOFTBALL
The Warriors went 1-2 in a three-day stretch to close last week and beat Alton on Monday to close the regular season.

"Wednesday, we played Waterloo and won 6-6," Granite City coach Deb Germann said. "That was kind of a nice note, because Tuesday night we had the (regional) seeding meeting and Waterloo got the third seed and we got the fourth seed. Not that that's a biggie but that's still kind of nice, to save face. (Pitcher Jessica) Stratman got the win. We banged out 13 hits, which is quite a few for us, because we have been struggling, even though we have been hitting the cages a little bit more. They had a real nice pitcher, too."

"Thursday night, we lost a heartbreaker to Alton (6-5). We had eight errors and (pitcher Stach) Foster deserved a better fate. She pitched a decent game. Out of their nine runs, only three were earned. We should have won that game, there's no reason to lose. Alton is a decent team, but we had the upper hand. We just made way too many errors."

"Friday night we played O'Fallon, I had Stratman throw against them. We lost 6-3, which is I guess a moral victory, because they are 23-3. They are a pretty decent team. They didn't start their No. 1 pitcher against us, but they brought her in at the end because it was 2-2 going into the fourth, so they had to bring her in. It was a quick game, a decent game."

On Monday night, the Warriors got another shot at Alton and posted a 3-1 victory in Alton.

"It was Stratman's best game of the year," Germann said. "It was done in an hour and 10 minutes, which is the way the game is supposed to be played. We had one error in the game and that was it, it was pretty quick. (Jan) Shanafelt went 2 for 3. We had nine hits overall."

Ashley Bogovich had a double in the second inning, and Stratman drove her in with an RBI single.

In the third inning, Natasha Douglas walked and catcher Jessica Reader advanced her with a fielder's choice. Senior captain Robyn Slater drove in Douglas with a single.

In the fifth, Douglas reached on an error and Reader drove her home with an RBI triple. Slater made first-team all-conference at third base and Reader made honorable mention at catcher.

"So we ended up the regular season 9-13, 6-6 in the (Southwestern) conference,"

Germann said. "We tied for third in the conference with Edwardsville."

Postseason awards were announced on May 19, and Granite City wasn't left out. Slater made first-team all-conference at third base and Reader made honorable mention at catcher.

The Warriors play Cahokia in the first round of the regional tournament, 4:15 p.m. today in Wilson Park. If Granite City beats the winless Comanches, they will face Belleville West on Saturday night in Millstadt.

Granite City splits two with Carbondale

Warriors close regular season at 12-20, opens postseason today

By Rick Broome

PREP BASEBALL
Typical of doubleheader action for Granite City, the Warriors started slow and lost the opener 7-6. They rallied to win the nightcap 5-3.

In the opener, Carbondale scored four runs in the second inning to take an early lead and then had to rally single tallies in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

"We fell behind 4-0, we battled back to go ahead 6-4, and they tied it up with runs in the fifth and sixth," Granite City coach Gus Lignou said. "They had the bases loaded with one out in the seventh and they tried to squeeze. We pitched out and we got the runner between third and home for an out. The runner at second base was trying to go to third. We threw it to third and we had an out, but we dropped the ball. So we could have gotten out of the inning. The count then was 6-3. We had brought (shortstop Devin) Mayes in to get the final two outs of that inning, and he got to 6-3 on the last kid. Mayes was 2 for 3 with a hung a curveball and it was up, and the kid got a baseli up the middle. "There was another example where we had the opportunity to get out of the inning and then the next kid does something to hurt us. That seems like that has happened to us a lot, where we just haven't been able to make the play when we needed to."

Granite scored one in the third, two in the fourth, and three in the fifth. Mayes was 2 for 3 with a run batted in, and first baseman Matt Pistorius was 2 for 4 with an RBI and a stolen base. Sophomore outfielder Shawn O'Dell went 2 for 3 with two RBI and third baseman Aaron Hoback was 3 for 4.

In the second game, Carbondale scored one run in the second and two in the fourth to take a 3-0 lead. But this time, it was Granite City's turn for the late heroics. The Warriors scored two in the sixth to close the gap to 3-2.

In the seventh, Warriors centerfielder Kevin Elliott led off with a single and

Baker touting camp's kickoff

The 1999 Warrior Kicker Camp springs to life once again this June 7-11 at the Granite City campus of Belleville Area College. Sessions are held from 9 a.m. until noon Monday through Friday. Cost for the week-long camp is $85.

"It's 27 years old here," said Granite City head soccer coach and camp director Gene Baker. "It's located on the B&C field, so there are plenty of facilities. Most good, quality commuter teaching camps will run roughly $125 and up. We tried to keep the cost down."

"It is primarily a teaching camp. We teach skills and we focus on southern Illinois soccer playing tendencies and flaws. So the goal is constantly to upgrade the quality of the game in the area."

"I usually have some guests. Sean Petrosky (a former Warrior standout, now playing in the German Bundesliga First Division with 1860 Munich) will stop by."

Registration forms can be picked up at Granite City High School. Completed applications should be returned to Baker at 1761 Vista Ridge, St. Louis, Mo., 63138.

Legion auction

The Tri City American Legion baseball team is sponsoring an auction 4 p.m. June 5 at the American Legion Hall, 1825 State St. in Granite City. Donations help fund American Legion baseball.

To make a donation, please call American Legion Post 113 (870-2002). Post Commander Ken Wallace (482-3008), baseball chairman Steve Platorino (451-8094), or senior baseball coach Chad Lignoul (452-6152).

PSG tryouts

Granite City High School track coach Gene Briggs is conducting registration and tryouts for the Southwestern North Region team he will coach in the Prairie State Games this summer.

Registrations and tryouts will take place at the Granite City campus of Belleville Area College. Times and dates are as follows:

For Open Women (anyone out of high school) — June 1, 6-7:30 p.m. (tryout); June 2, 6-7:30 p.m. (tryout); and June 5, 10 a.m.-12 noon. (tryout); For Scholastic Girls (grades 8 through 12): June 1, 6-7 p.m. (registration); June 2, 6-7 p.m. (registration); June 5, 10 a.m.-12 noon (tryout); June 7, 6-7:30 p.m. (tryout); June 8, 6-7:30 p.m. (tryout); June 10, 6-7:30 p.m. (tryout); June 12, 10 a.m.-12 noon (tryout). The Prairie State Games will be June 25-27 with track competition at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville. For more information, call Briggs at 876-4719.

Soccer camps

Slobo's Summer Summer Camps are scheduled in the Metro East for boys and girls ages 5-15. The camps offer instruction for field players and goalkeepers. The cost is $56, which includes a hand-stitched soccer ball, camp T-shirt and photo. For more information, call (314) 227-3038.

Camp dates and times are as follows:

- July 5-9, 8-10 a.m. at Wolf Branch School in Swansea; 11 a.m.-1 p.m. at Worthen Park in Granite City.
- July 19-23: 3-5 p.m. at Estelle Kampmeier School in O'Fallon.
- Aug. 2-6 at West Park Bowl in Columbia.

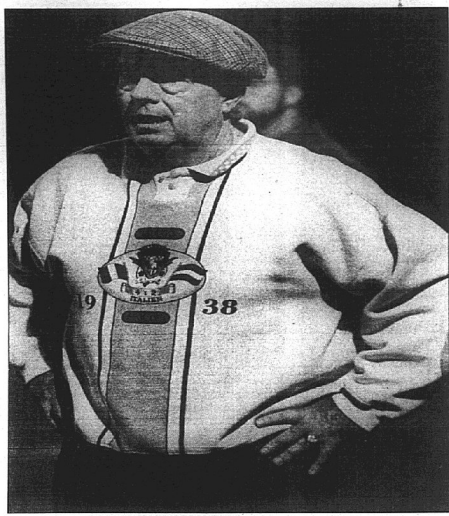

Special Olympics

Two athletes from the Metro East will compete in the Special Olympics World Games June 26-July 4 in North Carolina.

John Paschedag of Macheson will compete in bowling at the World Games. The Granite City High School graduate also competes in aquatics and track and field in state and local competitions.

Jodee Reed of Mascoutah will compete in soccer at the World Games. Reed, who also plays basketball and bowling, is a 17-year-old senior at Mascoutah. She has been named to the women's 5-on-5 soccer team, which will be coached by Richard Crothers of Mascoutah.

Another member of the

Granite City soccer coach Gene Baker again will be the director for the 1999 Warrior Kicker Camp, held June 7-11.

Illinois delegation is Jeffrey Price, a special education teacher at the Jefferson School in Belleville, who will be one two aquatics coaches with the contingent.

Baseball/softball camp

Former St. Louis Cardinals pitcher Greg Mathews and his staff will conduct a baseball and softball camp June 8-11 at Tri-Township Park in Troy. Sessions are 9 a.m.-2 p.m. each day. The fee for the camp is $100. For information, call the Greg Mathews Training Center at (314) 926-7305.

Outdoors news

The drawing for 27 waterfowl blinds at Horseshoe Lake State Park is set for June 6. The registration period for hunters ages 16 and older with a current or preceding year Illinois hunting license, a current or preceding year Illinois waterfowl stamp and a valid Firearm Owners Identification Card will be 10 a.m.-1 p.m. June 6. The drawing will be at 1 p.m. Applicants must be present for registration and drawing. For more information, call the Horseshoe Lake Park Office at 931-0270.

Warriors finish seventh in Class AA sectional

Atkins qualifies for state in 1,600-meter run

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

The Granite City boys track team's race for the IHSAA state meet was halted in its tracks at the IHSAA Class AA sectional meet at Belleville West last Friday.

The Warriors finished in seventh place with 30 points. East St. Louis scored 174 team points to win the 15-team meet. Edwardsville finished second with 62 points. Rounding out the top five were Cahokia (54), Belleville East (50) and Belleville West (34).

"It was a good result for us," Granite City coach Gene Briggs said. "We would have liked to have qualified more athletes for state, but we did run some great performances. We performed up to our ability and we are very proud of that conclusion to our season."

Kevin Atkins was the lone state qualifier for the Warriors with his second-place performance in the 1,600-meter run.

The Warriors placed in seven events overall. "We got fifth in the triple jump," Briggs said. "Earl Clark was jumping as well as he had all year. Earl is one of our senior co-captains. Jeff Hard placed fifth in the discus. Jason Evenden made finals in discus and placed sixth, and Jeff Hard also made finals in shot put. So our throwers had an excellent end to the season."

"We got sixth place in the 4x200 meter relay and seventh place in the 4x100 meter relay, and both of those were with season-best performances. So we ran personal records in those two events. In the two-mile run (3,200 meters), we had a sixth place from James Murphy and a fourth place from Jerry Curtis. Jerry ran very well that day. Steven Schroeder, our other senior co-captain, placed fourth in the 300-meter hurdles. He ran an excellent race, his best time of the year.

"Rich Skirball just missed state-qualifying standard in the 400-meter dash. He ran a 50.7 and 49.9 is state qualifying, so he missed by only eight-tenths of a second. But he ran a personal record, his best race of the year, so we are very proud of Rich."

"We also got a third-place performance from our two-mile relay team (Skirball, Chris Mertz, Jeremiah Beckley and Atkins). They ran 8:06.9, which was by far our best time of the year. State qualifying was 8:06 flat, so they missed by less than a second of qualifying for state."

Atkins posted a time of 4:31 for his second-place showing in the 1,600.

"Kevin has worked real hard and deserves certainly to go this year," Briggs said. "He has made that accomplishment for himself. We are looking forward to having Kevin run up at state."

"We do know that the boys performed up to their best at the last meet of the year and we are very happy with their performance."

(Montgomery) and Keri (Ousley) against the two strong kids—Rengle, who is a very good player; and Thaxton, who does a really nice job, has a lot of quickness."

Granite City senior Felicia Mohsen also gave a solid effort on the right side in the first half, forcing the action into the Knights third.

In the second half, Warriors senior flanker Amber Hubert missed on a few scoring opportunities.

"Up front, I thought Felicia was pretty much masterful in the first half, and then with the knee we had to get her in the backfield a little bit," Baker said. "She gave us a big lift in the first half. I thought she was kind of intimidating, really. Crystal worked that play (on the goal) well."

"In the second half, I thought we had the better of play and just didn't finish. Amber was burning them out there, but she just didn't finish. It was a very, very good team win."

After a regular season of sporadic lethargy, the Warriors put all of the pieces together Tuesday night.

"We came together as a team today and really played hard," Cavins said. "I think everybody gave an effort and really played with their hearts. Hopefully we can come out and play as a team again."

The Knights had nothing to hang their heads about, giving it a spirited effort for 80 minutes.

"When they get the lead, Gene Baker does a great job of coaching. It is always tough to score on them. Their girls played a great second half. I thought they moved the ball better than us in the second half and deserved the victory."

Mike Villa
Triad coach

"I thought it was a good game, a hard-played game," Villa said. "It was unfortunate for us. We broke out in front and then had a leadown right away, which has happened to us previously. The girls have to learn that right after you score, that's when the other team is going to come back at you hardest. They scored a couple of goals within a short period of time right after we scored. That was the difference in the game."

"Then, when they get the lead, Gene Baker does a great job of coaching. It is always tough to score on them. Their girls played a great second half. I thought they moved the ball better than us in the second half and deserved the victory."

The Warriors advance to face top-seeded Belleville East today in Columbia. The Lancers beat Belleville Althoff 6-0 on Tuesday.

The Columbia Sectional championship is slated for Saturday.

moved to second when Mayes grounded out to the pitcher. Teddy Millas walked. Pistorius hit a single that scored Elliott with the tying run. After Dustin Murphy walked, O'Dell hit a sacrifice fly to right field that scored Millas. Senior Scott Schardan then hit an RBI single that scored Pistorius for the final run.

Schardan also gave the Warriors a complete game on the mound, giving up three runs on nine hits with four walks and seven strikeouts.

"We got behind in the second game, too, but we won that one with three runs in the seventh," Lignoul said. "So each team won a game, each team won it in the seventh inning. It was a pretty exciting day of baseball, but we had the opportunity there to win them both and we didn't."

The doubleheader closed a disappointing regular season for the Warriors, who finished 12-20.

"The thing about this year was that I've always felt that you win with seniors," Lignoul said. "That's how you win, especially in this (Southwestern) conference. We had a couple of seniors that had very good seasons, and then we had another senior who had a good year. But the majority of the seniors didn't have the season that we had hoped that they would have, or that they had hoped they would have themselves. The result was that we ended up playing mostly underclass kids. I think we were starting five juniors and two sophomores by the end of the year, that made it tough for this year and the record would indicate that."

"When you play a lot of underclass kids they just have to make the adjustments, and the biggest adjustment is to the pitching. So I think our inconsistency through the year was first of all the seniors not having the kind of years that they needed to be successful. The juniors and sophomores then had to adjust to a different level of pitching, and there was some inconsistency there. One night we would, and one night we wouldn't, and that's just learning how to hit at this level."

"The other thing was that defensively we improved dramatically as the year went on, but we still had trouble. I seemed like when we needed to make a play and it was there we didn't. Our pitching at the end was good, with (Sean) Courtney, Murphy, Schardan and Mayes. Those four kids did a real nice job, they pitched well all year."

"I think we improved 100 percent from the time we started early in the year to the end. We had to make a lot of adjustments. We had a lot of personnel change during the year as some people played their way out of the lineup and other kids played their way into the lineup. It seemed like this year we were constantly making adjustments and changes, and I think that also led to some of our inconsistency, because it seemed like we never ran the same lineup until the end, consistently until the end."

The experience the younger players gained this year could make the Warriors tough in 2000.

"I think next year, having played all of these younger kids, they ought to be able to score a lot of runs," Lignoul said. "Most of them have seen the pitching at this level now for a large number of at-bats, so they'll be better prepared to handle it."

But the Warriors still have some work to do this year. They head to Ballou Civic Memorial this afternoon for a first round IHSAA regional playoff game against the Eagles.

SIU computers ready for Y2K

Staff report
Southern Illinois University President Ted Sanders said he agrees with and will use audit findings released Thursday by the Office of the Auditor General to improve operations on the Edwardsville and Carbondale campuses.

"We take these audits very seriously, and find they help us improve our day-to-day management," Sanders said. Three of the 12 findings—down from 18 last year—were highlighted in the report synopsis, and SIU has already responded with plans to address them.

Ron Creemeens, executive director of audits for SIU, responded to a finding that the university's efforts to address the impact of the year 2000 are not fully adequate.

"The university continues its year 2000 compliance efforts with the implementation of Oracle," Creemeens said. "As a backup, SIU's mission-critical legacy systems are being modified to handle year 2000 conversion problems."

"At SIUE, over 90 percent of its mission-critical application systems already have been converted and tested successfully to ensure Y2K compliance. The remainder will be completed in 1999. SIUE is currently taking inventory and testing every single microcomputer on its main campus to assure year 2000 compliance."

Auditors found on the Carbondale campus that Honors Program equipment was on loan to faculty members without proper forms on file.

"This is an isolated incident," Creemeens said. "But we want to make sure everyone follows procedures." Finally, the university will tighten up its documentation process for admission exceptions so that they meet precisely the requirements set forth in Illinois statutes.

Ahlers-Loftus

Jamie M. Ahlers of Granite City, the daughter of James and Connie Ahlers of Granite City, and Matthew R. Loftus of Glen Carbon, the son of Marie Loftus of Granite City and the late Raymond Loftus, have announced their engagement. Ahlers attended Park College. She is a secretary/human resources administrator at Midwest Metal Coating LLC in Granite City.

Loftus attended Southern Illinois University. He is employed by Entact Inc. in Quality Assurance/Quality Control.

They are planning an April 29, 2000, wedding.

New captains named for next year's pompom team

Correction: In the State Bible Drill competition on May 15, Kinsey Kell and Kristen Rappall were state winners. Kell received the second highest score overall, and Rappall received the third highest overall score, not as previously printed.

Maxine Green

Tryouts for the 1999-2000 Granite City High School Pom Squad were held May 20.

Congratulations to the new squad captains: Kristin Berniak, Meagan Bilyew and Julie Scott.

Squad members are Tiffany Berniak, Lydia Bettorf, Ashley Bywater, Alyssa Chrusciel, Tina Evans, Megan McKeehan, Teri Mendenhall, Lauren Miller, Lindsay Moore, Jennifer Smiddy, Kara Wallace, Rachelle Wallace and Anna Welsler.

Congratulations also to the Pom Parents Association board members for 1999-2000: president, Janet Smiddy; vice president, Debbie Baugh; secretary, Marilyn Bilyew; and treasurer, Marilyn Berniak. We all are looking forward to a terrific year. Please support our GCIS Pom squad. Look for the May/June pizza sale and the July car wash. Pizzas and car wash tickets are available now.

For more information to help or to donate to these talented and terrific girls, call Janet Smiddy at 877-6547.

The Ladies Home League meeting was held Tuesday in the Salvation Army Hall, conducted by Capt. Harriett Cline. The theme of the program was "Happy Faces."

With God in our hearts, we can wear a smile even when things are going the wrong way.

The following ladies attended the meeting: Evelyn Miles, Lila Bradley, Doris Stark, Dorothy Castleman, Geraldine Clay, Hazel Meisenheimer.

Reeves and Dennis Lybarger, and the sound system was run by Emily Falter.

A special thank-you goes to all the children's workers who helped: Becky Davis, Kim Golden, Linda French, Marsha Kumle, Paul and Debby Stayduhar and Donna Redfern. Also, thanks to all of the parents and the Young Adult Class for their hard work in the mini-carnival.

Vacation Bible School is open to all children. For more information, call Pontoon Baptist Church at 931-1316.

The Golden Agers met May 20 in the Salvation Army Chapel. Dorothy Castleman opened the meeting with prayer. Several songs were sung, led by Mr. and Mrs. Bud Scaturro.

The guest speaker, Frank Goss of Friendship Baptist Church in Caseyville, sang a beautiful song, "Old Friends." He used Proverbs, where Jesus spoke on "Ye are my friends." He also used John 15, where Jesus called Judas a friend.

After the meeting, the group adjourned to the dining hall for a chicken dinner with all the trimmings, provided by The Salvation Army.

After the blessing, members enjoying the lunch were those mentioned and Doris Stark, Earl Spalding, Bessie Phillips, Geraldine Clay, Hazel Weisenheimer, Evelyn Miles, John Reiske, Beulah McKinnon, Cleo Slusher, Ruh Laffer, Raddie Cochran, Vickie Alegre, Maxine Rutter and Ernestine Hahn.

Travel Academy program honored

The St. Louis Travel Academy was one of 15 curriculum programs honored recently at the "Pathways to 21st Century Careers" regional conference hosted by St. Louis Schools-To-Work Inc.

The school was presented with an "Examples That Work" award after its relocation to larger facilities at 2155 Barrett Station Road in West County.

The state of Missouri began accepting "Examples That Work" nominations from educators in the St. Louis area last November. Entries then were forwarded to the National School-To-Work office for final selection, based on the criteria established for 23 different categories.

The Travel Academy's focus on "Skills Standards" was acknowledged because of the mastery of skills, dictated by industry employers, required to graduate from such a program.

St. Louis Travel Academy is the only vocational school of its kind within a 200-mile radius of St. Louis.

Distinctions to re-open in June

Distinctions In Fashion, which is owned and operated by husband and wife team Nancy and Bruce Lehtman, recently experienced an electrical fire at their store at 12354 Olive Boulevard in the Westgate Shopping Center.

The business expects to be rebuilt and back in business for opening June 1.

Founded in 1989, Distinctions features fashionable women's clothing including elegant evening and wedding apparel as well as casual sportswear.

Two local nurses honored by Missouri Baptist Healthcare

Registered nurses Diana Christian and Viki Longfield, both of West County, are on the team that has been awarded the 1999 Missouri Baptist Healthcare Foundation Nursing Award for establishing a program in which nurses receive credentials to perform bone marrow biopsy procedures.

As a result of the program, 556 patients received bone marrow biopsies performed by credentialed nurses in the Missouri Baptist Cancer Center in 1997-98.

Take the Internet plunge

If you own or run a business, chances are you've had to consider, or will consider, the question of whether to take the Internet plunge.

Everyone knows the reasons not to create a web page for a business. People might say, "I'm fine without it," "it costs too much," "it won't work anyway," or "I don't have time."

If those things are really true, your business probably shouldn't have a web page. But I'll assume that all those might not be totally true. I'd like to explain why the Internet is revolutionizing business.

ESOLUTIONS

Traditionally, there have been several different stages to a consumer's buying process that happen at different times and in different places. For instance, perhaps a consumer learns about a product or service through television or newspaper. Then they might seek out more information by reading reviews of the product. Hopefully, the consumer would then go to the store and buy the product.

The Internet represents a change. It's a convergence of the information, distribution and selling channels. In other words, all those tasks can be handled in the same place, the Internet.

Consumers can browse for products on the Internet, and can find information about those products, and then can purchase them without leaving the computer. A business' task is to learn how to capitalize on those realities.

By designing your site to capitalize on those realities, you can make your site an effective marketing tool. For instance, your site should strive to be a resource regarding the link of product you are selling. You can type to web sites with similar content in order to draw increased traffic.

Your site should also have ample information about your product, including text and visual aides.

If someone accesses your site, that means they are interested in your business. Do not run the opportunity by designing a site that does not provide them with what they came for.

Because of the convergence of information gathering and purchasing, convenience is key. This means that your web site should make it as easy as possible for someone to do business with you. Not only can you provide the ability for your customers to make credit card purchases, but you should also make it easy for customers to contact you. You can do this by posting your phone number in an easy-to-see area and by creating an e-mail comment/response form so that you are only a click away from your customers.

If there is one thing to remember, it's that the Internet is about convenience. The more you do to make it easier for your customers to deal with you, the better off you will be.

Hoffman honored for work in General Assembly

The Illinois Probation and Court Services Association recently awarded state Rep. Jay Hoffman, D-Collinsville, top honors for his work in the Illinois General Assembly.

Hoffman was recognized during the association's Spring Conference in Springfield last week as this year's recipient of the Gerald Christman Legislative Award.

The award is presented annually to the legislator who performs outstanding service in probation and court services.

Darrell McGibany, Madison County director of probation and court services, noted that Hoffman has worked closely with the IPCSA for many years.

Rededication of commitment to customers

This column is being written on the request of a loyal reader. He asked that I address how we rededicate our commitment to existing customers. The following is a column I wrote last year that will be an appropriate review of this subject.

SALES

Before it happens, watch for the warning signs that your customer may be fading away.

• Appointments are being postponed. You thought everything was scheduled. You prepared correctly. You kept in mind all of those important strategies. Suddenly, the meeting is called off. When you call back to reschedule the meeting, they don't seem anxious to reschedule.

• Your key client ally is no longer in your corner. You counted on him or her to keep you informed, to introduce you to key players and to counteract any adversarial decision making. Suddenly the door is closed and phone calls go unanswered. Have they been reassigned? Did you do something wrong? • Inside information has become harder to get. You sense you are being cut out of the loop. You are no longer a partner. You are no longer being consulted for input. Without information, you are at a standstill. Don't they trust you anymore? • Recently you have heard last minute price objections. Why? You have no idea but you can bet that your competitors have something to do with it. Have you missed something? Did they take your proposal and shop around? Have they forgotten your good service and quality of product?

Find that ticking bomb. As David H. Sandler says, "The way to get rid of a bomb is to diffuse it before it blows." If your client is fading away, it is time for damage control.

• Test your current status. Let your client know you appreciate the business. Ask exchange referrals with your client. Give sons that you would quit doing business with me? or "What are the best reasons that you can think of for keeping business with me?" Clients go away because of the lack of strokes.

• Visit other client contacts. Discover whether changes are happening that might cause your ally to distance himself or herself from you. Don't depend on just one person in your client's company. Get to know the people around your client, their boss, their secretary, and their colleagues. Find out what is happening in the company from a number of different sources. Then, respond proactively. Meet any situation head on. Don't let a small issue grow into a big problem.

• Reassess the needs. Constantly reassess the needs of those you work within the client's business to assure both the old and the new needs are being met. Needs change within a company. Unmet needs become a bomb. We often get comfortable with our client's needs.

• Help your clients make their business grow. Exchange referrals with your client. Give them business referrals to help them resolve needs that are outside your scope. Make yourself more valuable to your client than merely a provider of products or services. Become an asset to their business.

• Paint a clear picture of the future and your involvement. Understand the direction your client is going and what part you will play in your client's future. Always leave your client with a clear understanding of what will happen next—when you will be back and what services you will provide. Promise only what you can deliver. Better yet, under-promise and over-deliver. Keep your client looking forward to your return.

Closing the sale is only the beginning of the relationship. Work as hard to keep the relationship as you did to establish the relationship. If your client fires you, it is generally because you are inattentive to him or her.

Annual reports give clues to company's outlook

Now is the time of year that many publically-held companies are required by the Securities and Exchange Commission to file their annual reports, the record of a corporation's financial condition and results of operations that must be distributed to shareholders yearly.

The timing of the annual reports corresponds with a company's fiscal year. Because many companies end their fiscal year when the calendar year ends on Dec. 31, these companies must file their annual reports with the SEC by March 31. This means that if you own stock in a publicly traded company, these annual reports will be showing up in your mailbox soon. The annual report also is accompanied by the yearly proxy statement, which includes information on salary and bonuses of the highest paid company officials, significant stock ownership and resolutions to be voted upon by company shareholders.

FINANCE

Instead of letting these annual reports gather dust on your coffee table, you want to consider taking time to review what's inside them. They can be a valuable source of information on stocks you already own or are looking to purchase.

Although you don't have to read every word of the annual report, there are some key parts of the report you may want to review:

• Executive's or chief executive's letter. Comparing annual reports from previous years can give you an idea of whether promises made in the letter were fulfilled in the following years. However, because the letter isn't mandated by the SEC, information disclosed in the letter may or may not be relevant.

• Financial statements. This section includes the balance sheet and statements of earnings or income, stockholders' equity, changes in financial position and notes. Check for trends from year to year to see if the overall pattern is an increase or decrease in profitability.

• Many analysts use the company's current ratio (current assets divided by liabilities) as one guide to determining the value of an investment in its stock. A ratio between 1.5 to 1 and 2 to 1 is usually considered safe, but be sure to check the company's receivables. These are included in total assets, and what looks like a good current ratio could be hiding the fact that the company has a substantial amount owed to it.

• Income statement. To make sure the company isn't inflating its earnings, check for entries called "extraordinary" or "non-recurring" gains or losses. In some instances, these could mean the company is selling assets to cover operating losses.

• Notes. Some of the most important information in the annual report is disclosed in the "Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements." Information in this section discloses information about the company's accounting methods, taxes and other material information, such as litigation, that could affect the company's future financial performance.

• Management's financial discussion. Unlike the chairman's or chief executive's letter, this portion of the report is required by the SEC. It can include a lot of information about the company's current business environment, mentioning both opportunities and risks. This section also includes a discussion of changes in the operating results from the previous year.

If you have questions or concerns about something you read in a company's annual report, check with your financial consultant.

Unique Toy and Game thrives in Wildwood, Mo.

By LaRita Marie Heet
Correspondent

Since 1993, when Gregg Wick opened Unique Toy and Game in Wildwood, Mo., the specialty retail toy store has been carving its own niche—a profitable one. The store is located at 16330 Manchester Road.

While the business is seasonal, with the highest revenue time of year between October and December, the business overall is showing an increase. Sales from the first quarter in 1997 doubled by the first quarter of 1998, said co-owner Lori Wick.

"(Gregg) started it from scratch, right out of college," said Lori, who owns the store with her husband, Lori, 28, and Gregg, 29, were married 2½ years ago. Last year, she began working full time at Unique Toy and Game.

Prior to opening his store, Gregg managed a store in Bloomington, Ind., which also was called Unique Toys. When the owner of that store closed her business, she gave Gregg the right to use her name.

"He started working with her the day she opened her store—the last two years, he ran the business. She really helped him out (opening his own store)," Unique Toy and Game specializes in a large selection of games, for anyone from infants to adults.

They also carry many of the popular board game brands and character-related toys, such as Brio, Playmobil, Arthur, Blue's Clues and Madeline. A wide assortment of educational and developmental games, puzzles and toys can also be found at the shop.

Customer Service

The store's success mostly can be attributed to their high level of customer service, Lori said. Customer service is really, really big here.

The store, which employs 17 people, practices the "customer first" philosophy. "It's an old-fashioned way of customer service," Lori said. "Many stores have gotten out of that practice."

Unique Toy and Game offers a variety of services including free gift wrapping, free local delivery, a birthday/holiday registry, and an 800 number for out-of-town people to place and order gifts. Every Tuesday is Grandparent's Day when all grandparents receive a special discount.

A frequent buyer's card is offered to customers—after 10 visits, the customer receives a discount on the 11th visit, for an average of all prior purchases. "This is a really good deal for them. If they spend $10 dollars at each of the 10 visits, then they receive $10 dollars off their purchases on their 11th visit," Lori said.

At least once every Saturday, Unique Toy and Game also holds Play Days, during which a representative from a particular toy manufacturer will come in and play with the children.

Competition and Value

While big-name discount and toy chains are located not far from Unique Toy and Game, Lori said they haven't affected her company's business at all.

"I have a positive attitude about it. And, I have a good working relationship with the managers at (some of the chain stores)."

In fact, she said, the relationship is so non-threatening that her store and the chains often refer customers to each other. "There are some things we really specialize in, that the large chains don't carry."

In particular, Unique Toy and Game's game and doll sections are quite extensive. "We carry a lot of what I call the 'old-fashioned' games—checkers, chess, backgammon."

Unique Toy and Game's large doll section includes the Madame Alexander collectibles, Corolle, and Magic Attic dolls.

Wallpaper can transform dull room into real dazzler

Premoistened wallpaper is much easier to apply

Hanging wallpaper can be a messy and frustrating project.

It involves the skillful handling of large, awkward sheets of paper with paste on the backside, careful positioning and accurate seam matching.

And, often you need to reposition the sheet to get the proper alignment.

But the end results are worth the challenge.

Nothing like wallpaper can add such beauty, style, character and warmth to a room and home.

Nearly 90 percent of all wallpaper sold today is premoistened. That is, paste is applied by the manufacturer to the backside of the wallpaper and only moistening is required to prepare the paper for installation.

This sounds easy, but proper preparation of premoistened wallpaper involves several steps, as moistening the paste is not easy to accomplish and does not necessarily guarantee good adhesion.

Experts at Wm. Zinsser & Co., a leading manufacturer of paint and wallpaper specialty products, offer the following tips that can make hanging premoistened paper easier, less messy and less frustrating:

- Prepare the walls with a universal wallcovering primer. Wallpaper needs to be hung over a sound, stable surface that's ready to accept the adhesive on the back of the paper.

Prepasted papers and borders won't adhere properly to slick, glossy-painted walls.

Porous surfaces like cured plaster and new wallboard can suck up too much of the paste, causing poor adhesion. And, the stress created by the wall's covering's drying and shrinkage can cause poorly adhering paint underneath to give way, especially in expensive builders' flat paint often found in new construction.

To promote bonding on these and other types of surfaces, you need to prepare the walls with a universal wallcovering primer.

- Use a prepaste activator instead of a water tray. The conventional way of wetting

"As it grows in popularity with new homeowners, builders are making more and more selections available, so it's important that homeowners choose the wood flooring that suits their lifestyle needs, and how much foot traffic or use each room will be supporting."

Mario Gonzales
marketing director
Mennington wood floors

the paste on the back of pre-pasted paper is to soak the entire roll of wallpaper in a water tray.

However, there are problems with this method.

First of all, water trays are very messy. As you pull strips of paper out of the tray, water drips onto the floor. After soaking multiple rolls, the water needs to be changed, and it's difficult and sloppy to carry a glue-and-water filled tray across the room to a sink or bathtub.

Second, soaking time directions provided by wallpaper manufacturers are difficult to follow.

They need to be measured in seconds. If you under-soak the paper, the paste might not be uniformly activated.

Over-soaking may wash paste off the back of the paper, leading to poor adhesion.

Third, there is a tendency to over-handle the edges of the wet paper while taking it out of the tray.

This wears paste off the edges, which can cause adhesion problems like lifting seams and curling edges.

Prepaste activators, which are rather new to the market, are applied to the back of pre-pasted paper with a brush or paint roller. They eliminate the need for a water tray.

The solution thoroughly and more reliably activates the adhesive on the back of the paper and adds grip, increasing the holding power of the adhesive.

This helps hold seams tight and reduces edge-curling and other adhesion problems.

You can never know enough about flooring when building a new home

Buying a new home and selecting all its various components can be an exciting, but overwhelming experience.

New homeowners are asked to make decisions about everything from cabinetry and appliances to bath fixtures and countertops.

Then they must sort through all the various options in each category.

Mario Gonzales, Mennington Wood Floors marketing director, said you can simplify the process by doing your homework before you get in the builder's showroom. This way, you'll understand which items will have the greatest effect upon your satisfaction with your new home.

For many new homeowners, flooring is just such a make-or-break option.

"Wood flooring is a great decorating choice and adds value to a home more than any other flooring type."

"As it grows in popularity with new homeowners, builders are making more and more selections available, so it's important that homeowners choose the wood flooring that suits their lifestyle needs, and how much foot traffic or use each room will be supporting," said Gonzales.

He suggests the following:

- Know the difference between engineered wood floors and traditional solid wood floors.

The advantage of engineered wood flooring is that it can be installed, by a variety of methods, anywhere in the home from basement to attic.

Composed of several layers of cross-grained hardwood plies, engineered wood floors are highly stable and less affected by seasonal weather changes.

So, homeowners can expect to experience fewer incidences of gapping between boards than with solid wood floors, an important consideration in areas of the country with temperature and humidity swings.

Also, the beautiful, wide variety of wood species, like oak and maple, designer colors, and consistent factory finishes are highly complementary to a wide range of traditional and contemporary decor motifs.

- Consider which rooms of your home will be appropriate for wood flooring. Today's engineered wood floors feature no-wax, stain-resistant finishes and can be appropriate for every room in a house, except for full baths. If your lifestyle includes heavy traffic through certain rooms or if you have pets and young children, select the construction, color and finish that is best suited for heavy use.

- Know your gloss levels. High-gloss wood floors are gorgeous additions to any home, and some homeowners simply prefer the elegant high-shine look.
- They are, however, more suited to easier living than a semi-gloss or satin-finish wood floor, which are better at camouflaging signs of an active household.
- Be prepared to choose between square or bevel edges. This almost is entirely a visual preference. Square-edged wood flooring is the more traditional choice and gives a room an attractive uniform look. Bevel edges add definition to each plank and provide some texture to the flooring visual.

So, try to see installed floors with both edge types before making a final decision about whether or not this is a priority feature. It will help narrow your selection.

Concert series set at SIUE

Program starts June 7

You probably wouldn't expect the Keystone Kops to be part of a chamber music concert, but that's just the combination scheduled for the first program of the SummerArts '99 concert series at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The odd combination is the result of two things: Assistant Professor James Hinson's participation in the Chamber Music for Winds, Percussion and Piano program, and his fondness for silent and early "talkie" films.

On June 7, a portion of the evening will feature the movie "A Race for a Life," an early Mack Sennett film with a musical suite written by 20th century American composer Paul Bowles. Hinson, a clarinetist, will be part of a quartet providing the live accompaniment for the movie just like the early days of movie houses.

Three SIUE music faculty members will complete the ensemble: Professor Linda Perry, piano; instructor Jerry Bolen, percussion; and Assistant Professor John Korak, trumpet.

The Bowles suite to be played by the quartet originally was written as the score for an Orson Welles project and is titled, "Music for a Farce."

The film is just a portion of the concert. The bulk of the evening features the four faculty members with St. Louis Symphony players Mark Grodon, oboe; Robert Mottl, bassoon; and Tod Bowermaster, horn. Selections will include the "Mozart Quintet for Winds and Piano."

The concert begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Lovejoy Library auditorium.

This is the first in the summer series of six concerts. There are three more classical concerts and two jazz concerts. The dates and programs of the concerts are:

June 14: Chamber Music for Strings and Piano. SIUE faculty members Lenora-Marya Anop, violin; Christine Hinson, viola; Kangho Lee, cello; Linda Perry, piano. 7:30 p.m., Lovejoy Library auditorium.

June 21: Miro String Quartet

It's Horseradish Festival time again!

12th annual event set for June 5 and 6 in Collinsville

By Val McDowell
Staff writer

The 12th annual International Horseradish Festival takes place June 5 and 6 at Woodland Park in Collinsville.

This festival helps celebrate Collinsville's long and uncontested position as "Horseradish Capital" of the world.

The uninitiated will find it an exciting and welcome introduction to the world of the pungent plant, which many festival events are centered on. Activities include unique events such as the horseradish cooking and Bloody Mary contests.

Other favorite events include the "Root Toss," where competitors see who can throw the horseradish root the farthest.

Also included in the fun is "Root Golf," where a sprightly aimed 50-yard swing can score a highly desired "hole in one" with a frozen horseradish root.

This year, festival organizers are introducing a new attraction, a bocci ball tournament, to be held at Fletcher's Field.

Roy Milam, who is overseeing the tournament, said that it is an enjoyable game.

"It's a game that was brought over by the Italians. Anybody can play; most will bring their own supplies, which can be brought in the Hill area of St. Louis. Most sets run for about $75 to $85 dollars," he said.

This game will only be played on Saturday, and the sign up for it begins at 10 a.m.

Other popular attractions returning include pony rides; Little Miss Horseradish and Little Mister Horseradish Pageants, crafters exhibits, live music and souvenirs.

Wonder why the horseradish plant is held in such high esteem in Collinsville? Look no further and stop at the Horseradish Information booth. There, growers and festival historians will be on hand to answer any question concerning the history and cultivation of horseradish in the area.

One staffer, John Keller, is retired farmer who still enjoys talking up the plant.

There is also a wide variety of food, beverages and lots of zesty, fresh-ground horseradish root for take-home purchase.

A number of other features include contests, such as the horseradish festival recipe contest.

Participants can submit their favorite horseradish recipes to see how they measure up to the quality of fellow experts.

The prizes are $100, first place; $75, second; $50, for third; and $25, fourth.

Submit entries to Cindy

Richter, 113 East Clay, Collinsville, 62234, by June 2. Rules can be obtained through the Collinsville Chamber of Commerce by calling 344-2684.

Other contests include the poster contest, where ten winners will receive $20 cash; and the Little Miss Horseradish Festival and the Little Mister Horseradish Festival competition for children 4-6; for more information on that call Sandy at 344-9864.

Shuttle buses will also be available to take participants to the festival grounds. The Madison County Transit System is providing free shuttle service between the Festival Grounds and the North Junior High School on Illinois 159 in North Collinsville.

Free parking is available at the school.

'The Castle' a delightful comedy

Michael Canton stars in new film

By Brian Kaller
Staff writer

Darryl Kerrigan (Michael Canton) believes himself the luckiest man in the world. He is happy in his career as a tow-truck driver, the loving patriarch of a close-knit family, and the proud owner of the home he calls his castle.

MOVIE REVIEW

His life is not one that most people would envy. To the casual observer, Darryl's children are underachievers (one son is in prison), and his house is an eyesore in a toxic-waste area under power lines next to the airport runway.

But Darryl is a man with a big heart and relentless optimism, who can look on the bright side of anything, and he takes genuine pride in showing visitors his ramshackle home, his dogs, his son's goofy inventions and his tacky plastic decorations.

The movie is narrated in hilarious deadpan fashion by

The movie is narrated in hilarious deadpan fashion by the youngest Kerrigan, Dale (Stephen Curry). Neither Dale nor the rest of the family may be the sharpest knives in the drawer, but they make up in loyalty and guileless love what they lack in sophistication.

The Kerrigans' domestic bliss is threatened one day, when the property assessment is followed by an eviction notice. The airport is expanding, it says, and Darryl and his neighbors, including Farouk (Costas Kiliyas), a Lebanese refugee, and Jack (Monty Maizels), a panic-stricken retiree, must make way for the new runway.

But no amount of compensation can make these people budge, and they all pitch in for a legal defense. In a series of hilarious yet touching scenes, Darryl first tries to represent himself, then hires inept solicitor Dennis Denuto (Tiriel Mora).

Denuto tries his best with

the law books — "he even learned Roman numerals for the occasion," Dale says — but he, too, is a spectacular failure.

The neighborhood is on the verge of giving up, as Darryl confides to a stranger outside the courtroom. But the stranger turns out to be a semiretired constitutional lawyer, and offers to take Darryl's quixotic case.

Most movies treat ordinary working people with contempt — and indeed, this movie walks a fine line between affection and condescension for its simple subjects — but their warmhearted, wide-eyed delight in the mundane pleasures of life quickly endear the Kerrigans to even the most cynical viewer.

"The Castle" is a comic delight, as modest and cheerful as its heroes.

The audience at the advance screening chuckled all the way through, cheered at the end, and left with big grins. This is a movie to seek out.

'Phantom' misses 'Jurassic' opening weekend record

"The Phantom Menace" attracted fans in record numbers, yet proved no match for dinosaurs in the battle for the best-ever weekend box office.

The long-awaited return of the "Star Wars" space opera grossed $61.8 million its first weekend, falling far short of the record $72.1 million debut of "The Lost World: Jurassic Park," estimates showed.

Since its release May 19, the "The Phantom Menace" prequel amassed $102.8 million, a spectacular number for any other film, but short of some expectations: Several movie analysts had predicted a five-day gross of $120 million to $140 million.

Still, while it settled for No. 2 all-time record for a Friday-to-Sunday opening weekend, "Star Wars: Episode I — The Phantom Menace" shattered a number of other records.

It had the highest single-day and opening-day grosses — $28.5 million on Wednesday — and became the fastest movie to reach $100 million — five days, vs. six for "Lost World."

"The Phantom Menace" set these marks, which are not adjusted for inflation, even though it didn't open on a holiday weekend, as event pictures usually do.

Tom Sherak, distribution head for 20th Century Fox, said the strategy was to release "The Phantom Menace" in midweek to first accommodate the hardcore fans — who would watch it any time, anywhere — and then make room for regular moviegoers to see it over the weekend or the Memorial Day holiday.

Cheer Up - We're Opening SOON!

Bubblegum music idols still thriving

Trivia

Kevin Carbery

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

Like a plague, music idols of teens and preteens appear on the pop culture scene every few years.

I will never understand why kids scream for joy at the sight of bubblegum rock performers such as N'Sync, Britney Spears or, going back a couple decades, David and Shaun Cassidy.

I do not claim to be a music sophisticate, but at least I never fell prey to the kinds of performers who show up in kiddie rock magazines. While I may have enjoyed looking at teenybopper stars such as Kylie Minogue or the Spice Girls, I didn't necessarily want to listen to them.

My main complaint about these types of performers is that they churn out bland, soulless garbage. Producer Maurice Starr has said dancing ability was at least as important as singing talent when he cast the New Kids on the Block. It was obvious, at least, that the boys weren't hired for their golden throats.

It is unfathomable to me how a no-talent group such as the Monkees could have three No. 1 hits. I will admit that, as a child, I watched their TV show. Of course, I was 4 years old. By the time I was 6, I had outgrown them intellectually.

The age of music videos has made it even easier for an unimaginative warbler to become a big star to the under 15 set. Kids see a Ricky Martin video and think he is wonderful, not realizing how derivative and superficial his songs are.

At the risk of offending junior high school students everywhere, this week's trivia quiz is on bubblegum music idols.

Music idols still thriving

1. Robert Van Winkle had 15 minutes of fame as a rap artist under what stage name?

2. What was the lone Billboard No. 1 hit for television actor David Soul of "Starsky and Hutch"?

3. "I Think I Love You" and "I'll Meet You Halfway" were hits for which group?

4. Jordan Knight, who has a current hit with "Give it to You," used to be a member of what horrible singing group?

5. Vince Neil is the lead singer for what allegedly heavy metal group which had hits in the '80s and early '90s?

6. Bobby Sherman had a string of hits in the late '60s and early '70s after gaining fame as a cast member on what television show?

7. Who was the extremely pale Brit who had hits with "Never Gonna Give You Up" and "Together Forever" in the 1980s?

8. What talentless hack made the Billboard Top 40 with songs such as "I Think We're Alone Now" and "All This Time"?

9. What '70s Scottish group made it big for a while with songs such as "Saturday Night" and "Money Honey"?

10. What Motown wannabes had back-to-back No. 1 hits with "I'll Make Love to You" and "On Bended Knee" in 1994?

ANSWERS: 1. Vanilla Ice. He hit No. 1 with "Ice Ice Baby" in 1991, badly ripping off the David Bowie-Queen song "Under Pressure." 2. "Don't Give Up On Us." 3. The Partridge Family. My friend Jeff still claims to love this pathetic group, making him the butt of jokes to all who hear about it. 4. New Kids on the Block, who changed the band to NKOTB near the end of their run. 5. Mötley Crüe. Tommy Lee is the drummer. 6. "Here Come the Brides." 7. Rick Astley. He was the definition of bland. 8. Tiffany. Yuck. 9. The Bay City Rollers. 10. Boyz II Men.

I will host the following upcoming trivia events: St. John the Baptist High School Trivia on Saturday, June 12, call 353-6007; St. Louis Community College at Meramec Alumni Association Trivia on Saturday, Oct. 2, call 984-7551.

Kevin Carbery can be heard as a regular on "The Entertainment and Trivia Show" at 10 p.m. Sundays on KMOX radio (1120 AM).

Billy Graham event goal: 250,000 souls

By Jim Merkel
Staff writer

With five months remaining, the pace is picking up for the Greater St. Louis Billy Graham Crusade Oct. 14-17 at the Trans World Dome.

After numerous preliminary meetings, the crusade sponsored separate major motivational and inspirational rallies for women and men last week at the America's Center.

A women's event featuring Graham's eldest daughter, Gigi Graham Tchividjian, May 18 attracted more than 5,000, while a men's event May 20 featuring assistant FBI Director Wiley D. Thompson III brought a crowd of more than 4,000.

Also, the Christian rock group The Katinas entertained more than 2,500 May 15 at the Third Baptist Church in St. Louis.

Crusade director Scott Lenning said the goal is to attract about 250,000 people to five events during the crusade at the Trans World Dome.

Lenning said there are two purposes for Billy Graham coming to St. Louis.

"Purpose one is evangelism, with the Bible showing the news of Christ and how He can change a person's life," Lenning said.

The second is strengthening the local church.

"You're bringing pastors together who never met," Lenning said.

"Ultimately, it's going to involve 25,000 volunteers," said Crusade chairman Lawrence A. Collett. While people from nearly 600 churches have come to meetings so far, the goal is to involve 750 to 1,000 churches, Lenning said.

The free crusades featuring the world-renowned evangelist will take place at 7 p.m. each night from Thursday, Oct. 14 through Sunday, Oct. 17 at the Trans World Dome.

The 7 p.m. crusade on Saturday, Oct. 16 will feature a "Concert for the NeXt Generation."

As a follow-up to mobilization rallies held thus far, a five-part Christian Life and Witness course will be offered at various locations Aug. 23-Sept. 25.

Horoscope

THURSDAY, MAY 27

The moon in Scorpio creates a steamy emotional environment, wilting everything in its path without the courage of its convictions. If you want something, do not compromise. The Gemini sun makes things look pleasant and calm, but corporate intrigue and neighbor clashes smolder beneath the surfaces. Refuse to back down.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 27). Fantastic rewards come from work done in 1998. Money arrives in August. Expect raises in October and funding for a creative project by the year 2000. Ambitions change midsummer, when home life and love prove exhilarating. Travel in September. A change of career is likely but won't last. Allowing a relative to help you will not compromise your independence.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Gradually let insiders know of your plans. Avoid rash statements — you'll be held to them. Luck surrounds a trial arrangement: in love, work or with kids. Tally up expenses now, or you'll be spending more than you bargained for.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Money and more money — wow! Go with your hunches, back up business ideas with investments, and show faith in yourself. Love with a newly single neighbor has the makings of true romance. Simplify family dealings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Someone is telling your innermost secrets. Keep important papers, diaries and records to yourself. Partners at work are not team players; look out for yourself. Purchase large items, and you'll make great deals.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Relax. Bask in the knowledge that others are attracted to you. The less you go after what you want, the sooner it will come to you. Review bank accounts, statements and insurance. Bold decisions impress bosses.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Spur-of-the-moment trips succeed beyond your wildest dreams. Crazy suggestions have merit. Negotiations may collapse, but this will not hurt as much as you fear. Fresh starts next week are spectacular.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Summon the courage to say what you really want. Your repressed anger hurts you physically and inhibits creativity. A chance encounter is the luckiest break of the season. Visiting an elderly relative will bring you peace.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). By

Horoscope

compromising your position just a bit, you eventually get the advantage. Charm allows you to act as a mediator and thus gain financially. But do be discreet. A tired love affair is wasting your time. Move on to an Aries.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Circumstantial evidence mounts, unless you get your side of the issue out into the open. Take an aggressive stance with foes or career competitors.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Take the time to investigate an offer before you turn your life upside down. Money comes from tiny little activities. Follow through with a promise to a family member, and everyone gains. A lover wants exclusivity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). After months of setbacks, expect this to be the summer of lucky breaks. Forget past disappointments, or they could infringe, wrongly, on the new career opportunities and financial winnings that are reserved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Never say never because someone or something is coming back, and this time things work perfectly. Be honest about your bottom line.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Stay flexible. Last-minute meetings and dates bring luck. A coincidence can be parlayed into a job, invitation or social coup. Keep personal data away from prying eyes. Spend money on your appearance. Upgrade equipment.
